

Former Board of Regents head Will Johnson dies suddenly Friday

Funeral services were held yesterday for Will R. Johnson, former president of the university's Board of Regents, who died at a local hospital Friday.

The university's flag was flown at half-mast Saturday, Sunday and Monday in respect to his memory.

Mr. Johnson, who was also vice president of the Northwestern Bell Telephone Company, became ill after returning home from a Board of Regents meeting Thursday night. His death was caused by a cerebral hemorrhage.

He had been in ill health for two years but continued working and always appeared at board meetings. Mr. Johnson often interrupted his work to attend meetings at the university.

Under his presidency, from 1946 to 1948, the Board of Regents approved many pieces of legislation. Among these were giving the board authority to extend and broaden retirement benefits for the faculty and employees, and the adoption of the ten year expansion plan.

During his term the Journalism and Home Economics Departments were expanded and put into four year programs, the university was approved by the American Association of University Women and a new president took office.

Many improvements

Installation of Omaha University's new athletic program was another development during his term. The snack bar and student lounge were also opened and new parking lots built. In addition, many building improvements were made.

Mr. Johnson was born in Iowa and came to Omaha in 1925. In 1937 he became general manager of the telephone company and in 1942 vice president. He was active in Omaha civic affairs.

Surviving are his wife, Edna J; three sons, Richard C., a student at Omaha University; Thomas W. of Austin, Tex.; Robert S. of Kansas City; one sister, Mrs. Jennie Kelting, and three grandchildren.

Services were held at 2 p.m. yesterday at the Dundee Presbyterian Church. The entire university, offices and classes, was closed from 1:45 till 3 p.m.

Burial was at West Lawn Cemetery.

Forms due tomorrow for practice teaching

All applications for practice teaching must be turned in by tomorrow.

Students planning to teach elementary grades should see Miss Frances Wood in room 375A. Those interested in teaching high school should contact George S. Pritchard in room 371B.

Institute to adjourn during holiday season

The Institute of World Affairs will not meet tomorrow evening.

That is the word from E. M. Hosman, director of the School of Adult Education, in announcing the adjournment of the weekly meeting until Jan. 12, 1949.

A busy holiday season was given as the reason for the break.

Regents make first move on campus housing

A recent story in The Wall Street Journal began this way: Schools are rapping at the door of the bond market.

The University's Board of Regents rapped ever so lightly on that door at their meeting Thursday night.

They voted to have a bill authorizing them to issue and sell revenue bonds presented to the state legislature when it convenes in January.

Monies raised from the sale of the bonds would be used to build campus housing facilities for faculty and students.

Although housing had top priority, a Student Union also came in for consideration.

Housing situation critical

Finance Secretary Charles Hoff said yesterday that the critical housing situation that has existed among the university's new faculty members prompted the regents to make the bond proposal.

Hoff explained that revenue bonds are a method of expanding facilities without raising local taxes. The bonds are sold, he said, on the basis that the new plant will pay for itself within a stipulated period of time.

Nebraska already has laws authorizing the issuing and selling of revenue bonds to finance the expansion of housing facilities in junior and teachers colleges and in the state university. The teachers colleges-state university bill was passed in 1943, the junior college bill in 1945.

Type change supplies room for this article

Unlike many Hollywood stars, The Gateway refuses to be "typed."

So, beginning with this issue we are changing our type.

The lines of type in this paper are a little closer together than they have been in previous issues this semester.

The change is being made for two reasons:

1. It will allow about ten percent more news in the same amount of space.

2. Most observers say the new setup will give the paper a more professional appearance.

Use nine point slug

In printer's language the change is explained this way:

The body type in the paper is now being set on a nine point slug where before a ten point slug was used.

There are 72 points to an inch of type. By using a nine point slug about eight lines can be fitted to the inch. A ten point slug permits about seven lines.

For purposes of comparison, this paragraph is set on the ten point slug formerly used.

Gateway takes 1st class award

The Gateway has come through with another First Class Honor Rating from the Associated Collegiate Press critical service.

Last semester's paper earned 855 points to get the rating. ACP judged The Gateway according to its news value, news writing and editing, headlines, typography makeup and features.

News writing and editing was rated as the best of the six categories.

The paper's 855 point rating put it in the "excellent" class of the nation's top publications in its enrollment class and within 45 points of the All-American rating, the highest award ever given by the ACP.

Jack Carter, editor of the paper, now is a journalism instructor at Norfolk public high school.

Mid-winter education talks open next week

The Mid-winter Conference series on educational practices and theories will open next Thursday at 7 p.m. in the auditorium. Dr. Harold Alberty of Ohio State University will lead the discussion on "Curriculum Practices in Prospects."

The conference is a series of three discussions sponsored by the University of Omaha Department of Education and the Omaha Public Schools. The series will continue through Dec. 1.

Beef-box now in bookstore

If you have a suggestion, load up and shoot it in the direction of the Student Council.

They have placed a suggestion box in the bookstore for students who have ideas concerning conditions or student activities. It is not necessary for students to sign their names to the suggestions.

"This action is being taken so every student will have an opportunity to express his opinion," said Dolores Hughes, council member.

Suggestions will be taken from the box every Wednesday, and discussed at the weekly council meetings. Important suggestions will be assigned to special committees.

The Student Council has provided a suggestion box for several years.

Fieldhouse on time; steel on way

Cold weather and snow last week caused speculation as to possible delay in the Fieldhouse construction.

According to Charles Hoff, finance secretary, construction is running as nearly on schedule as possible. The concrete is being poured now, and the work on the erection of the steel should begin by the middle of December.

Charley Brock, coaching staff member, was interviewed to get a coach's view on the merits of the building when it opens next fall.

"The Fieldhouse will be a great thing not only for the school but also for the alumni and citizens of Omaha," said Brock. "It will enable the university to carry on a Thanksgiving menu: Plenty of turkey, no Gateway.

The Gateway is taking a Thanksgiving vacation along with the rest of the school. Today's issue will be the last one until Dec. 3.

Regular classes will adjourn tomorrow night at 9:30 and will resume on schedule next Monday morning at 8.

Senior proofs are ready now

Here's "proof" that work on the 1949 Tomahawk is underway.

Seniors may choose proofs of their yearbook pictures at the Colvin-Heyn Studio, 1807 Farnam, today through Saturday.

Students photographed last Friday will select proofs today. Those who posed yesterday will make their choices Friday and those photographed today will decide Saturday.

All proofs must be returned to the studio on or before next Saturday. Pictures which have not been returned by that time will not be included in the yearbook.

Music Department, V. J. Kennedy and Richard E. Duncan, assistant professors of music, Mrs. Olga Strimple, alumni secretary, and Virgil Sharp, past president of the Alumni Association.

The group will mull over the entries to find the five best for presentation to the student body in a coming convocation.

These five top songs in the minds of the judges will be arranged by the Music Department. Students attending the convocation will act as the final judges in picking the $100 prize winner.

Machinery for the all-school convocation will be handled by the Student Council.

Chest Drive loses steam

The Campus Chest Fund Drive is running out of gas many, many miles from home.

To date only $37 has been contributed to the fund. This is a long stretch from the desired goal of one dollar per person, or a total of almost $2,000.

The Student Council sponsored fund will probably end tomorrow, according to Ormsby Harry, assistant dean of students. Money will be divided among the Community Chest, the Red Cross, and the World Student Service Fund.

Donations of any amount may be made through one of the student collectors or in room 272.

full program of intercollegiate athletics and also improve our intramural activities."

Schedule more games

The new building will enable the university to schedule more home basketball games than they have in the past. Since the games can be played right here on the campus, there can be no conflict on open dates as in the present setup with Tech High.

"It will eliminate night practice for the cagers and consequently draw more boys out for the sport," Brock pointed out. "Also, the school will be able to schedule games a year in advance, thus broadening the choice of oppon-

GREASEPAINT AND OLD WAX

With old time music pushing itself into the limelight at school dances over the country, even jazz (remember?) is sneaking onto many a big campus.

The much-whispered-about type of music popular not so long ago hit Michigan's campus in the fall of 1946 when a student held a sale of old records.

In no time at all, his interested fellow students had worked the sale into a club for the exchange and appreciation of hot records. Now they're enlarging their 30-member club to all those interested in jazz as an art.

The stuff is swinging down at Miami University, too, with a big club that's sponsoring a musical potpourri called the Jazz Band Ball. They're awarding a trophy every year to the best student group of three to eight pieces, playing any kind of music.

Already, they've got a campus paper called the Jazz Record and some plans for concerts with famous jazz soloists. To help the students learn more about music, the club even holds a weekly jazz clinic. At the clinic, they have a record library, periodicals and even instructors for those who want additional help. That's really jazzy, isn't it?

Exciting things happen in Omaha, too, and tonight's the last chance to hear one of them. Albert Spalding, violinist, is with the symphony at the Joslyn. There'll be singing on the sand at the Omaha tomorrow when the Desert Song company of 115 people moves in.

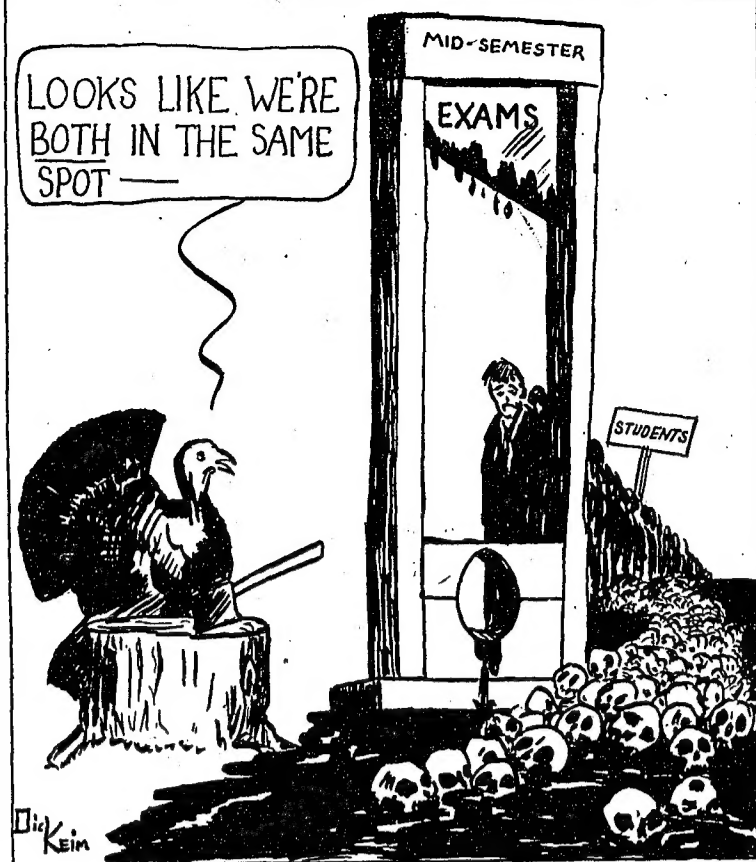

If you're heading for the movies during vacation, there's a lot of music in A Song Is Born, but the plot keeps popping up and interrupting all the jazzists. Danny Kaye and Virginia Mayo star in this rehash of "Ball of Fire." In one of the unlikely scenes, Benny Goodman learns to play a hot clarinet after a single reading of a jazz history book.

One Touch of Venus, or "Oh What A Kiss Can Do In Macy's," shows clumsy window dresser Robert Walker kissing a statue that promptly turns into a live toga-full of Ava Gardner. There's also some Kurt Weill music held over from the stage production.

In Miss Tatlock's Millions, John Lund is hired by Barry Fitzgerald to impersonate a hollow-headed heir to millions whom he strongly resembles. He rollicks through the part of a moron very convincingly and gets the guy's sister, cute Wanda Hendrix. When the real heir shows up with a Hawaiian wife and two native babies, there's you-know-what-to-pay.

Man is but a worm. He comes along, wiggles a bit, then some chicken gets him.

The chopping block . . .

Dr. Bail speaks at Graduate Club meet

Dr. Bail is guest speaker at tonight's Graduate Club dinner at 6 p.m. in the faculty clubroom.

The dinner is the first in the series of four meetings of the club. Members have taken graduate work at the university.

Piano entertainment will be provided by Jacqueline Gellus, a student.

Personals . . .

The Gateway with last Friday's issue hopes to stop for all time charges that it is too formal, too cold, too aloof.

In fact, it has since been said that we are too informal, too personal.

It all stems from a front page headline in Friday's paper which read: "Rutherford names yearbook personal."

On the loss of a friend . . .

Death, no respecter of persons, has taken the life of one of the members of our Board of Regents.

And it is said by everyone—linesmen at the telephone company, faculty, alumni and students that Will R. Johnson was a grand guy.

The City of Omaha counts its loss in terms of the vacancy at the head of the Northwestern Bell Telephone Co. and in positions of service in its civic organizations.

But the University of Omaha counts the loss of its former Board President as the loss of a fine friend. It was during his term that we saw our greatest period of growth. He worried along with the rest of us during the years when the war claimed our students, and again during these years while they are hanging out of the windows.

The selection of Dr. Bail as president was pushed by Mr. Johnson.

Five hours before his death he had been at the University of Omaha pushing through a bill for faculty retirement. The Board decided to present the bill to the next session of the State Legislature. "Fine," he had said.

His seven years of service to our university also saw the installation of the ten-year building plan. He will not see its completion.

The university joins with the Gateway in appreciation of his service, which, too, was "fine." L. B.

Cornhuskers due for another loss

Lampe's Likes—

The Gateway's football predictor, Ray Lampe, has compiled a percentage of 757 so far this season.

Last week Lampe's score was 710 as he hit 24 winners and six losers.

In the pigskin-filled Thanksgiving weekend, Lampe likes Army over Navy and Georgia Tech over Georgia in two of the top games. Other games should run like this: Kansas State over St. Louis, Missouri over Kansas, Oregon State over Nebraska, Oklahoma State over Oklahoma A&M.

Down south, if everything runs true to form, the winners should be Texas over Texas A&M, Vanderbilt over Tennessee, SMU over Texas Christian, Mississippi over Mississippi St., Villanova over North Carolina State, North Carolina over Virginia, and Wm. and Mary over Arkansas.

In other games around the nation, the Gateway prognosticator picks Penn St. over Washington St., Nevada over Wichita, Notre Dame over Washington, Maryland over West Virginia, and Michigan St., over Santa Clara.

Working aspects of the City Manager form of government were discussed Sunday on the third of a series of broadcasts over KOWH.

Guests on next Sunday's program will be Mayor Glenn Cunningham and Robert Armstrong, Director of the Omaha Taxpayers' Association, who will participate in a discussion of city budget procedure and certain aspects of the city's '49 budget.

'Rumbling of 1000 trains equals avalanche roar'

If you've ever had a thousand freight trains running two inches from your nose, you know what an avalanche sounds like.

Maynard Malcolm Miller told this to a convocation audience in the auditorium yesterday. The show was given at 9 a.m. and repeated at 11 for the overflow crowd.

Mr. Miller was one of a group of eight members, including one woman, of the Harvard Mountaineering Club who were the first to climb Mount St. Elias. The peak rises 18,008 feet to dominate the whole eastern rim of the Gulf of Alaska.

The party, dubbed "Colossal Enterprises," started from Yakutat on June 12, 1946, and reached the summit on July 16, St. Elias Day. An explorer 205 years before had sited the towering peak and, as it was the day of the Feast of St. Elias, named it in his honor.

Learn right way

Mr. Miller emphasized that, of the fifteen accidents in mountaineering last year all were caused by lack of skill. He urged all prospective mountain climbers to join a club and learn the right way, as mountaineering is the acme of teamwork and cooperation.

Maynard Malcolm Miller...at his peak while climbing same.

The doctor of the party had only one opportunity to use his skill. One mountaineer peeled off his socks and the doctor was horrified to see that his feet were a gory red. Further examination, however, proved that it is not advisable to leave red socks on more than six weeks in the arctic because perspiration causes the dye to fade.

The arctic causes many freak experiences in nature—everything from sunburn at zero temperature, working in your shirt sleeves, or reading the paper at midnight by the light of the arctic sun.

Mr. Miller is now with the Department of Exploring and Field Research for the American Geographic magazine. He will soon be leaving for Patagonia and southern Chili to conduct further geodetic experiments.

Patch heads new Engineers Club

Twenty-eight engineering students Thursday evening attended the second meeting of the newly formed Engineers Club in the Student Lounge.

Dick Patch was elected president of the group. Other officers elected are Theodore Pasko, vice president; Gene Andrews, secretary; and Ray Swenson, treasurer.

In addition to electing officers, the members of the club discussed revision of the old constitution.

Announcement of the next meeting of the Engineers Club will be posted on the bulletin board.

Friendship, scholarship, and leadership are the purposes of the club. These purposes are engraved on the club pins.

Human relations cited by Bail in talk

Human relations, the world's fundamental problem, was given a solution 2,000 years ago in Christ's story of the good Samaritan, Dr. Milo Bail said Sunday evening.

The university's president spoke to 20 members of the First Central Congregational college-age group. Dick Rose, August senior at OU, is president of the organization.

"You don't get something for nothing," Dr. Bail warned.

He described the good citizen as one who works "to pay his own freight," participates in a "happy, harmonious home" and is active in

Storm acts as censor for Bail

The storm which swept outstate Nebraska Friday forced the university's president to become unaccustomed to public speaking.

Dr. Bail was to speak Friday evening before the Scottish Rite in Lincoln.

Originally planning to drive, he cancelled those plans because of the reports of slick highways and decided to take a train.

After being informed by the railroads that there would be no trains to Lincoln because of the storm, Dr. Bail settled on a bus.

At 3:30 p.m. he boarded a bus and left Omaha. It took the bus almost seven hours to cover the 60 miles between here and Lincoln.

When Dr. Bail arrived at ten p.m., the meeting was just breaking up.

He had no need for his prepared speech.

community service.

To produce such a citizen, Dr. Bail stated, the modern university must provide "better counseling service, work experience and experience in community service."

The meeting was held at the home of Mrs. W. E. Pierpoint, 5501 Harney street.

Noble jeep jumps Atlantic twice

George Nielsen and Lord Chesterfield . . . the plug is obvious.

Lord Chesterfield is a jeep. Not the Lord Chesterfield of English History, but the jeep belonging to George Nielsen, junior here at the university. And a most unusual jeep it is.

Unusual because it has twice crossed the Atlantic, for reasons of the hub-caps it wears and the name it bears.

Lord Chesterfield went to Italy in 1944 as part of a lend lease deal. One of Nielsen's buddies bought it from the Italians and shipped it back to the states. George bought the jeep of the stately name and shimmery hubs about the time school started this fall.

When he went down to the license bureau to register the 1942 Willys model, he found the jeep's pedigree was written in Italian. No one in the license bureau could read Italian. So, after a little hesitation, the bureau stamped an official OK on his lordship.

Caps from B 29

Large hub-caps on a jeep aren't too uncommon today, but when they are made of stamped aluminum, that's different. And when that aluminum was taken from the fuselage of a B 29, as Lord Chesterfield's were, that's really different.

The unusual jeep's owner is campus representative for a cigarette company—hence, the name Lord Chesterfield.

In its short time here, the jeep has had one serious tussle with another auto and has added 5,000 miles to its speedometer—not a particularly easy life for a nobleman.

House organ editing clinic set for Jan.

Omaha University will be host to industrial editors from both Iowa and Nebraska in January.

This was revealed Thursday by Robert Moasholder, Journalism Department head, at a noon meeting of the Omaha Chapter of the Southwest Industrial Editors Association.

The editors will be here for a one-day clinic on house organ editing, tentatively scheduled for Jan. 25. The university's Department of Journalism, together with the Omaha and Lincoln chapters of the SIEA, will sponsor the clinic.

VA reminds vets of compensation change

Vets are again reminded by the Veterans Administration of recent changes in disability compensation laws.

Any war or peacetime veteran who has a service-connected disability of 60 percent or more and who has one or more dependents is eligible for the increases which range from $6.72 to $91 per month and date back to Sept. 1.

But, in order to qualify for retroactive compensation, the vet must present legal proof to the administration's office before Dec. 1.

Wilson, Rayburn win bar, CPA distinctions

"Birds of a feather flock together."

And in the same office nest are two university business professors who won honors during the summer.

R. Wayne Wilson was admitted to the Nebraska State Bar Association June 21. George Rayburn became a Certified Public Accountant July 31. Rayburn took the standard examination given in 46 states and four United States possessions.

"Not as hard as college exams" was Wilson's description of the two-day test given by the State Supreme Court. He is now eligible to practice law in Nebraska and Federal courts.

Student fees reach ceiling

President Bail informed the university's Board of Regents Thursday that student fees were at the top and could not go any higher.

Board members learned that student fees totaled 63 percent of the school's income during the 1947-48 school year. Taxes amounted to 32 percent while other sources contributed 5 percent.

Charles Hoff, finance secretary, recalled that ten years ago the total income was $367,000. Of this, taxes amounted to 63 percent and student fees 30 percent, just the opposite of what they are today.

Expenditures for last year were 87 percent of the total authorized in the budget. The $188,000 surplus was added to the building fund which now totals $564,000.

Debators argue merit of planned economy

Four Iowa University men had words with each other Friday morning.

They clashed on the question, "Shall We Approve a Planned Economy?" at a Friday morning convocation debate in the auditorium.

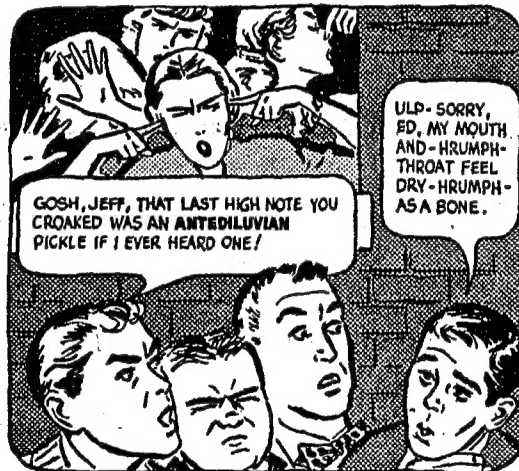

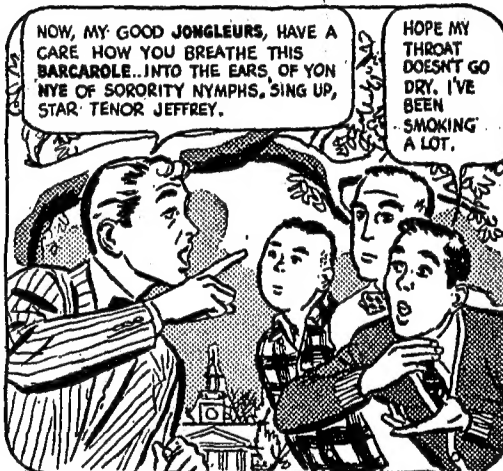

The affirmative team of Harlen Hockenberry and Ray Stoddard advocated the plan because it would prevent the "boom and bust" cycles of capitalism. It would, they said, eliminate the excess of money which forces prices up and would also abolish private monopolies.

Opposing a planned economy, Kenneth Thompson and Herman Cohen held that such a program would cost our political liberty and vest control in a central planning board with dictatorial powers.

Canadian trip listed for Pflasterermen

22-game schedule faces cage crew

Coach Don Pflasterer will take his basketballers outside the United States for one game this season.

The 22-game schedule, released this week by Athletic Director Virg Yelkin, includes a game with Assumption College of Windsor Canada, Tuesday, Dec. 21.

The Assumption tilt is the final stop on a four-game trip which begins Dec. 16, at Washburn University in Topeka, Kansas. Wayne University of Detroit, Dec. 18, and Central Michigan College of Mt. Pleasant, Michigan, are the other two contests.

Indian fans will be able to see their team perform 12 times in Omaha. There are eleven home games plus one away game at Creighton University.

Wayne plus Wayne

Two of the Pflasterermen's tilts involve different schools with the same name. Wayne College of Wayne, Nebraska, will meet the Indians in Omaha and Wayne University of Detroit will battle the court crew in Detroit.

Omaha will play eight of its first 11 games on the road. But, nine of its final 11 tilts are in Omaha.

The Indians open their season Dec. 1, with Iowa University at Iowa City, the toughest opponent on their schedule. Following the Iowa game, OU tackles Doane at Crete on Dec. 3, before they play their first home game against Wayne College on Dec. 7.

Tech hits Delta Beta spikers in volleyball meet

Tech High's Intramural volleyball squad, defending champs, advanced to the second round of the tournament Friday night by slipping past Delta Beta Phi in two straight games.

The Maroons, paced by an Al Pascale-Don Flecky spiker combination, were pressed by the Delta squad in the first contest before grabbing a 15-11 win. But the Techsters poured it on in the second game to clinch the match 15-8.

Done Anthes also sparkled for the wild-balanced Maroons.

In the opener Friday, Central's Eagles squeezed by the Benson Bunnies in a best of three thriller. The Bunnies, paced by Ray Schmidt and Jack Seume, grabbed the first game 15-12.

Eagles come back

The Eagles roared back in the second tilt with some spirited spiking by Ernie Flecky to romp 15-5. A last ditch rally by the Bunnies proved futile in the deciding tilt. Trailing 14-7, the Bensonites boosted the score to 12-14 before dropping the final point and the match.

Central added a little humor to the match in the third game with some torrid "floor" play on the part of Charley Mancuso. Chuck spent a good part of the game flat on the floor after desperation tries.

In the opening contests last week, Phi Sigs walked over North 15-7, 15-8, and Outstate nipped Theta 15-12, 15-11.

Outstate, South point for upset bowling victories

Outstate and South will be after upset victories this afternoon at the 40 Bowl when they meet the league leading Phi Sigs and Tech clubs.

The defending champion Packers have an added incentive because they are only one game behind the leaders. South can gain undisputed possession of the lead if they take three games from Tech and Outstate blanks Phi Sigs.

North's keggers, who handed Phi Sigs their first league losses last week, will tackle Thetas while Benson goes against Alpha Sigs.

Delta Beta meets the last place Central team in the final match of the day.

Frats to battle in holiday T bowl

Two university fraternities will get the jump Thanksgiving Day on the rest of the bowl games in the country.

Alpha Sigs and Thetas will meet in their annual Turkey Bowl football classic Thursday on the university practice field.

John Jones, Don Gorman and Charley Mancuso will handle the coaching duties for the two fraternities. Jones and Gorman are mentors of the Alpha Sig outfit and Mancuso will mastermind the Theta charges.

Complete football equipment has been issued to 20 members of each team by the Physical Education Department.

The game will be a regulation 60 minute contest and will be officiated by a member of the university coaching staff.

Fieldhouse

Among other points listed by Brock concerning the Fieldhouse were the following:

1. The Physical Education program can be expanded to meet the needs of the university when the Fieldhouse is completed. The Quonset Hut can accommodate only 35 or 40 people, the Fieldhouse will enable three times that number to participate in the physical education program at the same time.

2. Shortage of lockers and showers will be a thing of the past.

3. Baseball, football, track and tennis teams will have a place to continue their drills inside when weather does not permit outside activities.

Iowa game only a week away, OU cagers moan

Even staunch Omaha U fans will admit that Don Pflasterer's initiation as head basketball coach is going to be rocky.

The genial mentor and 15 varsity performers will report to Iowa U Fieldhouse Wednesday, Dec. 1, to do battle with the Iowa Hawkeyes.

It will be Iowa's opening game, too, and dopesters say the Hawkeyes can name their margin. Omaha will be doing better than expected if it holds the Big Nine five to a 20-point victory.

The Iowans ranked twelfth in the nation last year.

Coach Pflasterer still has a week to prepare his men for their roughest game of the season. But the squad will not be ready for the assignment.

40 still drilling

By opening game time, Pflasterer will have had a total of three weeks (two for the football-playing cagers) to whip the crew into shape.

He has not decided on the starters or even the traveling roster as yet, of course, with only two weeks of workouts completed.

As a matter of fact, 40 men are still drilling. Ten will be cut prior to the opener. This will leave 15 varsity players and 15 Papooses, who will toil under Charley Brock, new B basketball coach.

Saturday, the Indians will square off in a second scrimmage against a Strategic Air Force combination at the Legion Club gym, Twentieth and Dodge.

The Indians "looked ragged" in an informal scrimmage against an SAF club last Friday, Pflasterer admitted.

Ray Schmidt, Glen Richter, Joe Arenas, Archie Arvin, Walt Matjeka, Don Fitch, Lou Clure and Jerry Easterhouse are returning letter men.

But five of last year's award winners—including the No. 1 and No. 2 scorers—are not in the fold.

Frank Slogr, top scorer with 207 points, and Mike Landman, a fixture in the front line for three years, will be missing. Landman, now working in New York City, led Omaha scoring for two straight years until last season, when he finished second to Slogr.

Most Papooses return

Other letter men absent are Buddy Yambor, who transferred to Buena Vista College; Rog Sorensen, veteran guard who left at mid-season to enter the Navy, and Don Berg, now in a California Junior College.

Only Bob Green of Pflasterer's fine Papoose club of last season is not returning. Joe Cupich, Al Carrillo, Steve Lustgarten, Bob Stedman, Paul Sorensen, Larry Christensen, Dick Nelson and Fred Abboud are all back.

Ernie Flecky, transfer from Creighton; Guy Oberg and spunky Bill Holderness, former North aces; Bud Gibbons, stalwart Tech athlete; Bob Farner, ex-Norfolk (Neb.) and Omaha Benson standout; two Iowa boys, Don Fisher of Villisca and Creston's Gene Weidner, and young Gene Heins, lanky freshman, are promising newcomers.

Oberg played half a season with the Papooses in the 1946-47 campaign.

SOCIAL ACTIVITIES

Social Register

New Corinthians to receive keys Dec. 1

New members of the Corinthian Society, scholastic honor group for upperclassmen, will be given keys at a dinner Dec. 1 at 6 p.m. in the faculty clubroom.

Dr. Bail will speak on the "Standards of Excellence."

The honor society was formed by the Faculty Honors Committee last spring for those students who have been on the Dean's Honor Roll for at least four semesters. Dr. Ralph Wardle is chairman of the committee. Byron Miller is president of the organization, Phyllis Earp, vice president, and Dorothy Nelson, secretary.

Movies, election on Sig Pi Phi agenda

Canadian scenes in technicolor will be featured at the Sigma Pi Phi meeting tomorrow at 3. The meeting place will be announced on the bulletin board. The educational fraternity is presenting a program of movies this year at each of their meetings.

Election of officers is on the business agenda. Present officers are Wentworth Clarke, president, and Alice Mae Smith, secretary.

Gamma actives air pledge rules at tea

Gamma actives brushed the pledges up on pledge training regulations at a tea Sunday afternoon at the home of Shirley Mitchell. Ruth Jorgensen headed the program.

"Fantastic Situations" was the theme of entertainment given by the actives under the direction of Emmy Lou Lundt.

Cake and coffee were served. Mrs. Nellie Jones was welcomed as a new sponsor.

Border(s) trouble

Has anyone seen this man?

He is wanted by The Gateway for escaping a picture caption in Friday's paper where he appeared as the In focus personality.

He has been identified by Gateway Editor Bob Seitzer as Morris Borders. He has also appeared in Gateway stories as Morris Borders, Boris Morders and Joe Pfutnik.

The above picture of Borders was taken last week at the Community Playhouse as he was playing the role of father in "I Remember Mama."

The intended caption for the Borders picture Friday was, in case you're interested, "Morris Borders . . . play acting is among his talents."

CLUB MEETINGS

Monday, Nov. 29

Alpha Phi Omega, men's service fraternity, will hold their Founder's Day banquet at 5:30 p.m. in the faculty clubroom.

Tuesday, Nov. 30

Phi Delta Gamma, forensic fraternity, will meet in the faculty clubroom from 7 to 9:30 p.m.

Wednesday, Dec. 1

The Pre-Med Club will hold a business meeting in room 309 from 5 to 6 p.m.

Thursday, Dec. 2

The Interfraternity Council will conduct a business meeting in room 318 from 3 to 4:30 p.m.

The Town and Gown Club will meet at 6:30 p.m. in the faculty clubroom.

'Phi Sig Four' sing for pledge dance

The "Phi Sig Four" highlighted entertainment at the Phi Sig pledge dance Friday night at the Paxton Hotel Ballroom. The all-Greek dance was informal, and Al Marsh's band provided the music.

Intermission diversion was presented by Lloyd Metheny, pledge president. The "Phi Sig Four," composed of Alex Morar, Harry Elsasser, Harry Langdon and Bob Duckworth, gave out with "Coney Island Baby" and "Every Day is Ladies' Day with Me."

Art Gaeth fingered the piano with renditions of "Mary Had a Little Lamb" as Schubert, Tschai-kowsky and Mozart might have played it. Morar and Duckworth also ran through a skit called "One Stage Disappearing."

Sponsors for the dance were Mr.

Phil Delt actives got an advanced skip night scare Wednesday night when the pledges arrived for the meeting half an hour late. Retribution came with the pledges' recitation of the Greek alphabet.

Plans for the annual Phi Delt dance Jan. 28 were discussed.

Suggestions for a December party were aired at the Independents meeting last Wednesday. Skits were discussed as entertainment.

President Fred Barson conducted the meeting and urged members to push the student fund drive.

Representatives of the alumni chapter were guests at the Sig Chi meeting last Wednesday.

Arline Hinchcliff, speaking for the alumni, announced the chapter would present an annual achieve-and Mrs. George S. Pritchard, Mr. and Mrs. George Rayburn, Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Wilson and Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Maxwell.

ment award to the active or pledge maintaining the highest average. The award will be a guard for the active pin set in pearls and sapphires.

Plans for a progressive dinner Sunday and for the annual Christmas Dance Dec. 17 were discussed. Jo Zander is in charge of arrangements.

A brief initiation ceremony Thursday morning pledged two members, John Kolm and Jerome Bendykowski, to Phi Eta Sigma, national honorary scholastic fraternity for freshman men. The officers of the fraternity conducted the ceremony.

Thirty-one Feather pledges attended their first business meeting last Wednesday in room 309.

The noon meeting was called by President Bess Tesnohlidek to acquaint the new girls with their duties and to decide on calling committees and meeting dates. The members also discussed new uniforms for the pledges.
